The University of Toledo

The Mentoring Collaborative is a student driven initiative created from a master thesis project and has become a pilot mentoring program for more than 30 undergraduate students at The University of Toledo.

Interactions with a committed mentor are critical to the success of our students. For some of these young people, you may be the first positive role model they have encountered in their entire lives. Our community and our youth need your contribution. We invite you to complement our efforts with your gifts of time and talent.

Several dedicated individuals at The University of Toledo (UT) have gathered to create The Mentoring Collaborative. It is our goal to assist and uplift our students and we ask that you participate by becoming a mentor who can provide guidance and motivation to a member of this unique program.

In the spirit of student centeredness, this conglomerate of campus-wide factions focuses on increasing retention for minority and at risk student populations by representing diversity and inclusion across all boundaries to create unity and advancement in our student body.

With the use of workshops, mentor guidance, and a website of campus and community resources, The Mentoring Collaborative has established a solid foundation on which to build a long lasting UT tradition of reaching back to help those who come along behind us.

Many of us have achieved greatness by standing on the shoulders and becoming benefactors of those who have come before us. Please join us in continuing this legacy.

Reach me to learn more about the ways that mentoring makes a difference in the lives of UT students who are involved in this program. Mentors who give the gift of their wisdom and their time to those who are following in their footsteps are cherished and treasured by this organization.
